PREFACE

As State Welfare Administrator under Governor Robert D. Orr, I am most mindful that the public should recognize and be knowledgeable of our dual purpose to provide compassionate assistance to those who are eligible and to protect the taxpayers' investment in human and fiscal resources. With expenditures approaching one billion dollars ($1,000,000,000), it is incumbent upon the State Welfare Department to demonstrate a fiscal responsibility and accountability that assures Hoosier taxpayers that vitally needed human services are being properly and legally delivered, while scarce resources are being conserved.

Hoosiers can feel confident that Indiana's welfare system is operating with efficient and effective business principles in place, while delivering compassionate and humane assistance to unfortunate and needy citizens. Our efforts, with the public's support, have brought Indiana a nationally recognized standard of excellence.

Along with 92 county directors, I am proud of our coordinated achievements. Indiana is recognized with the administration of AFDC, Medicaid, Food Stamps, Child Welfare programs and Child Support. Processing of determinations and applications are well within the statutory maximums. Many operating policies have not only been clarified to minimize potential discomforts, but extraordinary efforts have been made to expedite the appeal process, thus helping insure a consistent and proper application of the federal and state laws and regulations.

This Graphic Overview of Indiana's Public Welfare System for Fiscal Year ending June 30, 1983 presents in tables and graphs most of the achievements and programs which are the responsibility of the Department. We have taken care to make this presentation an accurate, comprehensive explanation of the current and historical status of the welfare system in Indiana.

On behalf of myself and my colleagues at the county level, I am pleased to bring to you this summary record of our accomplishments—a concise compilation of the activities of one of Indiana's most costly programs which touches the lives of all its citizens.

Donald L. Blinzinger
Administrator
